DE NAMUR UNIVERSITY

M.A. in Education

Launching Lives of Purpose

The goal of this degree program is to build the capacity of educators to promote social justice in their schools and communities through improved teaching practice, curriculum development, instructional design and assessment, program planning, and research. This program also prepares graduates to assume leadership and consulting roles in organizations with an educational focus.

DISTINCTIONS OF THE M.A. ED PROGRAM

- Candidates used action research as the foundation for their master's thesis, allowing the opportunity to investigate in depth a particular area of curriculum and instruction within their own classroom or school
- Credentialed teachers can transfer up to 6-units of graduate level coursework not applied to another degree
- Program graduates include master teachers, mentors, department chairs, school leaders, instructional designers, curriculum developers, educational consultants, managers in non-profit organizations, college and university faculty

Graduate Programs that Transform Careers.
